

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

POSTAGE-STAMP collecting is a fashion not confined to this country, or to a single class; for collections are frequently to be seen in the drawing-room of the luxurious, the study of the enlightened, and the locker of the schoolboy. The fashion has been ridiculed, as all fashions will be; but if postage stamps are properly studied, collected, and arranged, there is no reason why they may not be quite as instructive and entertaining as a collection of birds, butterflies, shells, books, engravings, coins, or other objects.

The use and charm of collecting any kind of object is to educate the mind and the eye to careful observation, accurate comparison, and just reasoning on the differences and likenesses which they present; and to interest the collector in the design or art shown in their creation or manufacture, and the history of the country which produces or uses the objects collected. Postage stamps afford good objects for all these branches of study, as they are sufficiently different to present broad outlines for their classification, and yet some of the variations are so slight that they require minute examination and comparison to prevent them from being overlooked. The fact of obtaining stamps from so many countries suggests the inquiry, what were the circumstances that induced their adoption, the history of the countries which issue them; and the understanding why some countries have considered it necessary, in so few years as have passed since they first came into use, to make so many changes in the form or design of the stamp used, while other countries have never made the slightest alteration.

The changes referred to generally mark some historical event of importance: such as the accession of a new king, a change in the form of government, or the absorption of a smaller state into a larger one, a change in the currency, or some other revolution. Hence, a collection of postage stamps may be considered, like a collection of coins, an epitome of the history of Europe and America for the last quarter of a century; and as they exhibit much variation in design and in execution, they may also be regarded as a collection of works of art on a small scale, showing the style of art of the countries that issue them; while the size of the collection, and the manner in which the stamps are arranged and kept, will show the industry, judgment, neatness, and taste of the collector, who should always bear in mind that every accessory that is showy and bright takes away from the appearance and interest of the stamps themselves.

I began to collect postage stamps shortly after the system was established, and before it had become a rage, as I took great interest in their use and extension; and I believe I was the first who proposed, in 1834, the system of a small uniform rate of postage to be prepaid by stamps, having satisfied my own mind that the great cost of the post-office was not the reception, carriage, and delivery of the letters, but the complicated system of accounts that the old system required; and having learnt from the best writers on political economy that the collection of money by stamps was the most certain and economical. It was, in fact, the mere application of the system used with regard to newspapers to letters in general.

For several years previous to 1834 the improvement of the post-office had been called for, and a royal commission was appointed to consider the subject. The Duke of Richmond, the postmaster-general, in 1834, issued a paper, showing the reforms that had been introduced into the post-office during the last three years. (See Times, March, 1834.)

Early in 1834 Mr. Charles Knight, either from his own impulse, or from what he had heard from me, proposed through Mr. Matthew Hill, in the deputation on the abolition of newspaper stamps in March, that the newspapers should be circulated free by penny-stamp covers; but the plan was not adopted, the stamp remaining on the paper.

In January, 1837, Mr. (now Sir) Rowland Hill circulated among his friends a pamphlet marked "private and confidential," in which he advocated a uniform penny postage, to be prepaid in money at the receiving-houses. In March, 1837, Mr. Hill published a second edition of this pamphlet, enlarged and altered, in which he added a second mode of collecting the postage by means of stamped covers; referring to Mr. Knight's suggestion, in 1834, as the origin of the plan.

The royal commissioners took notice of the suggestion, and examined Mr. Hill, Mr. Preesly, and Mr. Wood, of the stamp-office, and Mr. Smith, of the post-office, and recommended the adoption of the post-office covers, stating that the enforcement of prepayment by law was impossible. They circulated with the evidence the first specimen of the covers made by Mr. Dickenson, which they recommended. (See Ninth Report of the Post-office, 1837.)

A mercantile committee was established to induce the government to adopt Mr. Hill's plans as then stated. They made a subscription, established a new paper, and there were one or two parliamentary committees, and a systematic agitation, by deputations, &c., through the country, in imitation of the Reform Bill agitation, which had only recently passed over. In the earlier days of the committee the stamp cover was chiefly urged, but the opposition of the paper makers and stationers to the monopoly, as they called it, of Mr. Dickenson, made the committee pay more attention as they proceeded to the adhesive stamps; and they issued some parti-coloured stamps or labels, made by Mr. Whiting, on their circulars, as a specimen of what adhesive stamps might be.

The government, on the 5th of December, 1837, adopted a uniform system of postage, as an experiment, charging fourpence for each letter, to be prepaid in money. On the 10th of January, 1840, the rate was reduced to one penny on a half-ounce letter, and on the 6th of May, 1840, the "Mulready envelope" was issued; for Mr. R. Hill still had his predilection for a cover. The public called for adhesive stamps, and these were at length issued; and their general adoption by other countries, and for other purposes beside collecting postage, shows the general advantage of the system over the prepayment by money or the covers originally suggested by Mr. (now Sir) Rowland Hill.

Large as is the balance carried to the revenue from the post-office, the system proposed and advocated by me has never been completely carried out, consequently a large staff of clerks and other officials is still retained at the post-office, at a large expense, to keep the complicated accounts that a few unpaid letters require, which, if the system were fully carried out, would not be necessary.

I am aware that to enforce by law the prepayment of all letters by stamp is very difficult, if not impossible; but this is not necessary. There is no necessity for any account of unpaid letters to be kept, except in cases where the official suspects some unfair play; otherwise it might be left for the postmaster, through whose hands the unstamped letter last passes, to place the requisite special stamps upon it, and to collect the cost of those stamps from the person to whom the letter is directed. This he is likely to do with care, as each postmaster is allowed a commission on all the stamps he sells; and to prevent, as much as possible, the sending of letters that would require this treatment, the system of paying double the usual postage, or even a higher fine, should be enforced on all letters not paid for in stamps before they are despatched. It is said that the postmaster may lose, as many of the letters on which he has placed stamps may be refused. If so, they would be returned to the dead-letter office, and his stamps allowed for; but this will not be often requisite, as the post-office can now enforce the payment against the sender, if it be refused by the person to whom the letter is directed.

This system is now in use, to a certain extent, in France, Italy, Bavaria, and the North German Confederation, where special stamps are officially employed for letters insufficiently or not at all prepaid.

The system of prepaying postage by stamps has been adopted, as this catalogue will prove, by all civilized countries, and has been extended into other branches of the government and the law courts. It is also used in the electric telegraph service, and by several errand and carrier companies in Europe and America.

In 1840, two printed envelopes were issued, bearing a design by Mulready, the Royal Academician, "with the hope of spreading the taste for high art," but they called forth such an outburst of ridicule, and such a number of caricatures, that they were soon disused. Then the engraved profile of the Queen was adopted as an adhesive stamp for affixing on letters; and after some time an embossed profile of the Queen was issued, stamped on paper as an envelope, which had long before been suggested by Mr. Whiting.

When the first adhesive stamps were issued they were printed in black ink; but it was found difficult to properly obliterate them either with black or red ink, and they were afterwards issued printed in a different coloured ink, so that they can all be obliterated with the same black hand or machine stamp.

Some of the colonies commenced with manufacturing their own stamps, and used emblematic designs, as Hope reclining, for the Cape of Good Hope; a Swan, for Swan River; the Queen on her throne, for Victoria; but by degrees they have generally adopted a simple profile of the Queen, like the English; and the stamps now used in the colonies, and indeed in many parts of the world, are not only designed and engraved, but also printed or embossed, in England. Many of these are executed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., of Bunhill Row (who call themselves in the Directory, "Envelope Makers and Manufacturers of Government and Colonial Adhesive Stamps"), and Perkins, Bacon, & Co., in Fleet Street, "Bond and Bank Note Engravers." They are printed in these establishments under the supervision of an officer of the Inland Revenue department, or an inspector appointed by the colonial or foreign governments.

The majority of foreign governments, as they have adopted the system, have also adopted the profile or portrait of their sovereign for the stamp. Other governments use the arms of the state or sovereign for the purpose. Some states, which began by merely using, as a stamp, a numeral surrounded by a more or less complicated frame, have since adopted the royal portrait.

In England, the manner in which the stamps have been obliterated has undergone many changes. Now they are obliterated by a block, which, by the form of the internal disk, and the number in it, marks the postal district in which it was originally stamped. Each continental state cancels in its own manner; several have undergone considerable change during the time the stamps have been in use. In France they formerly obliterated with a hand-stamp that had acute prominences on it, so as to puncture the stamp which it obliterated. The study of the means employed for this simple purpose affords an interesting object of contemplation. In some of the outlying offices in India, Ceylon, Canada, &c., the stamp is obliterated by a pen-and-ink mark before the letter is despatched.

A few stamps—such as the old four-annas of India, the "too-te" and "registered" stamps of Victoria and New South Wales, early issues for the Swiss cantons, Russia and Poland; one or more values of the more modern stamps of Roumania, Heligoland, Finland, Livonia, Spain, and the United States of America—are printed in inks of two colours.

Some of the German states issued their first stamps printed in black ink on different coloured papers; but they have, one after another, given up the practice, and now issue them printed in different coloured inks on white paper. The different states seem to have changed the colour of the paper, or the ink with which they printed the stamps, at different times very capriciously; hence the same stamp occurs of very different colours. They are said to have now adopted a uniform colour for stamps of the same value,* thus—

4 pfennige, or $\frac{1}{2}$ silbr. gr., or 1 kr. —Green.

6 pfennige, or $\frac{1}{2}$ silbr. gr. —Orange.

1 silbr. gr., or 3 kr. —Rose.

2 silbr. gr., or 6 kr. —Blue.

3 silbr. gr., or 9 kr. —Brown.

In England, the adhesive stamps are printed on paper with a peculiar watermark, different in the various stamps; and the envelopes issued by the English stamp-office are all printed on a peculiar paper. Formerly, there were three lines of coloured silk inserted in the paper, so as to form lines across the stamp; and several foreign governments adopted the same plan. It has now been disused in England and Germany; but in the latter they print in small letters the value of the envelope, in three lines, over the stamp, thus: Post couvert, drei groschen; ein groschen, post couvert. The envelope stamps of Russia, Switzerland, Hamburg, and the United States of America, are embossed on specially-prepared watermarked paper, bearing, respectively, a spread-eagle, dove, castle, and the initials P.O.D., U.S.

In England, the regulation now is that the stamp be placed on the right-hand upper corner of the letter or envelope. In Saxony, Hanover, Baden, Brunswick, and Austria, like those first issued by Mr. Hill's Committee, the stamp was formerly placed on the left-hand side of the envelope; now they are usually placed, as in England, on the right-hand upper corner. In Russia and Finland the envelope stamps were at one time impressed on the flap; and in the Brazils, the adhesives were occasionally used as a seal, which caused them sometimes to be overlooked by the post-office officials.

During the late terrible civil conflict in the United States, postage stamps formed almost the only currency of small value in circulation; and the government issued them without being gummed for the purpose of their being so used, as it was found that the gummed stamps were apt to adhere together when carried and handled. They afterwards issued fac-similes of postage stamps printed on larger paper, with full directions; these were termed postage currency.

* Nearly all the stamps here mentioned are now obsolete.—Ed.

Before stamps are printed, it is usual to take off from the plate one or more impressions on common paper, and in ink of different colours from those in which the stamps are officially used, to see if the plates are in a condition to print, so that none but perfect stamps should be issued, and that the government may not be cheated by these prior impressions being used as postage stamps. Such impressions of an unusual colour have been called proofs—they are so in a printer's use of the word, but not in that of a collector of engravings.

The head post-office sends stamps round to the local offices to show what are in official use. In England the stamps so sent are marked across with the word "specimen," to prevent their being used for postage purposes. In Germany they circulate for this purpose stamps which are printed in black or some other colour not officially used. Such stamps were at one time catalogued as stamps of identification.

Some clubs, as the "Oxford Union Society," and others, that supply their members with stamps, hand-print on the stamp the sign or initial of the society. In Western Australia the stamps supplied to the government officials are perforated in the centre, to prevent their being used by them to prepay private letters.

Stamp collecting—which, when this introduction was first written, was in its infancy—now numbers its followers in almost every part of the world. It possesses also a literature of its own, including several catalogues in different languages, works on forged stamps, and well-conducted periodicals: besides which numerous albums, compiled by experienced amateurs, have been published. These facts indicate the undiminished attraction which stamp collecting still exerts, and which, as a beneficial recreation, I trust it always will.

PREFACE TO THE FIFTH EDITION.

THE great increase in the number of stamps, the remarkable advances which have been made in what is not inaptly styled the "science of philately," and the changes which have taken place in the views of collectors generally as to what ought, and what ought not, to find a place in their albums, have combined to render necessary a thorough revision of Dr. Gray's catalogue. The descriptions have consequently been much curtailed, only the more prominent points of each design being enumerated; and abbreviations have been employed, in order to further economise space. Room has thereby been obtained for the insertion of the many series which have been issued since the appearance of the last edition, and also for reference to the principal secondary characteristics of stamps, viz., watermark and perforation. Varieties of perforation are not, however, included, nor (with some marked exceptions) differences in the texture of the paper on which stamps are printed, the Editor believing that as such varieties are accepted only by a few, it would have been out of place to notice them in a work, like the present, destined for the use of the great body of collectors.

"Essays" being no longer collected, and being for the most part designs engraved only to sell, the appendix describing them which appeared in the last edition has been omitted from the present.

The second appendix, containing descriptions of "Locals," has been entirely re-arranged, and has also been enriched by a full catalogue of the Californian and British Columbian frank stamps, from the pen of Mr. E. L. Pemberton.

NOTE.—Oblong pieces of paper, bearing a white diagonal cross, have been called Complementary labels. These were only the impressions of the woodcut block, which were arranged to fill up the formes from which the stamps of the old issues were printed. In a sheet of fifty Austrian stamps there were impressions of four such blocks. When the sheets of stamps were perforated, they were so separated also, as they were of the same size as the stamps, and in lines with them. The sheets of stamps of the present issue do not contain any of these labels.

10 lept., red; 20 lept., blue; 40
lept., violet, dull rose-red; 80
lept., crimson.

NOTE.—These stamps may be collected in three series:—

1.—The series printed at Paris, which consists of very fine impressions, and all the stamps of which, except the 10 lepta, are destitute of the numeral at the back, the figure on the 10 lepta being also twice the size of that on the 10 lepta of the two succeeding series.

2.—The early Athens-printed series, the stamps of which, except the 1 and 2 lepta, have the numeral of value on the back. This series is also well impressed, but in deeper colour than the preceding, and the neck is more shaded.

3.—The later Athens-printed series, which consists of more or less blurred impressions in duller colours, from deteriorated dies. In other respects, this series is identical with No. 2, but the very considerable difference in the character and shade of the impressions renders it worthy of collection.

NOTE.—The Finnish stamps offer many difficulties to collectors. For the first two series, it will be observed, the same designs and colours respectively were chosen for both adhesives and envelopes. Originals of the first series are of great rarity, and even the reprints from the retouched dies are far from common. Forgeries alone are easily to be obtained. There are two varieties of each of the adhesive stamps of the first series, one set having 37 lines on the shield, and being printed on laid paper, with the lines running vertically; the other having 39 lines, and being on paper the lines of which run horizontally. The envelopes are only found of the first type, and the lines of the paper in them run obliquely.

Of the envelopes No. 8 two sets may be distinguished, one with the waved lines on the shield wider apart and fewer in number than in the other. There are also in existence very interesting varieties, consisting of envelopes bearing on the flap the design No. 7, and on the back, in the left upper corner, the design No. 8. These envelopes formed the remainder in stock of the 1856 issue, and were utilised by the impressions of the new type on the back.

* It has been discovered that postal envelopes were used in Sardinia from 1819 to 1836. Two series were in circulation in that period, the first from 1819 to 1820, which bore a blue impressed stamp low down in the centre of the part folded to receive the address. Of this there were three values : 15 c., circ. ; 25 c., oval ;

50 c., oct. ; and a representation of the last-named is herewith given. The second series was on paper watermarked with the arms of Savoy in the centre, and having watermarked inscriptions disposed round them, the border of the paper also showing a Greek pattern, and bearing an inscription, which signified, "Correspondence by private carriers, by foot passengers, and other means." The values and designs were the same as those of the preceding series, but instead of being coloured, they were in white relief. A purchaser of any of these envelopes might, under certain conditions, send the letters written on or enclosed in them by any private conveyance, instead of through the slow and clumsy post-office. For full particulars of these interesting stamps, we refer our readers to an article which appeared in The Stamp-Collector's Magazine, vol. v., p. 161.

Thus the first stamp for each province, though apparently differing in value, was really the same.

NOTE.—Specimens of many of the stamps issued anterior to 1863 exist with one line each way, drawn across with pen and ink, or with three printed bars, crossing transversely, and obscuring the design to a considerable degree. These specimens formed part of the remainders of their respective series in hand when the same were withdrawn, and the obliterating mark was made by order of the authorities (by whom, as may be presumed, these remainders were sold to dealers), to prevent their being used by any chance for prepayment of postage.

In addition to the stamps above catalogued, there are known to exist certain hand-stamped devices, of the type of which the annexed illustrations will give an idea. These stamps were impressed on letters written by members of the Cortes at their session-house, and such letters were thereby franked. The interest attaching to these stamps is not sufficient to warrant the insertion of a detailed description; and they are so rarely to be met with, moreover that few of our readers can hope to obtain a specimen.

4. Like No. 3 a., but unperf., unwmkd., and on thin paper.

5 (cinco) centavos, deep rose.

NOTE.—It is affirmed that the other two values were also printed on thin paper, but in view of the fact that the ordinary stamps of this series (3 b. and c.) were in use long after the nominal emission of their successors (Nos. 6 and 7), it would appear that they were only used on thin paper (if at all), for speculative purposes.

NOTE.—Mention has been made in some of the philatelic journals of the reappearance of the above design printed on yellow, but the value is not mentioned. It would seem that it has been temporarily resuscitated; but having no authentic information, I have deemed it best to omit the yellow impression from the list.

NOTE.—Two series of unperforated stamps may be distinguished, that on paper blued by the gum, and that on white paper; but the distinction being due to accident, it appears to me undesirable to indicate it in the list of emissions. The date of issue of the first series is uncertain.

1858 (26 October). 4 (cuatro) rs.
[reales], brown ; 1 (in) peso, brown.

1859 (1 Jan.). 1 (in) peso, blue.

NOTE.—The 1 peso brown was printed from the plate (or stone) of the 5 pesos orange, which value, in consequence of a reduction in the rates, became obsolete. Of the word cinco, the first and the two last letters were erased, leaving the word in, signifying one. The 1 peso blue of 1859 was printed from the plate (or stone) of the 4 pesos red (which, like the 5 peso, had become obsolete), and the original denomination, cuatro, having been but partly erased, many collectors observing the traces of this word have been led to think that a 4 pesos blue was emitted. This is, however, entirely an error. The dates and other information above given are derived from official documents.

NOTE.—The foregoing were issued by the postmasters of the respective towns named, to a great extent upon their own responsibility, on the breaking out of the war, and before the authorised stamps were got ready. Un real, red; dos rls., blue; cuatro rls., brown, green; un peso, black.

NOTE.—These stamps were prepared by the American Bank Note Company for the Juarist government, but when the supply was ready the Republicans were reduced to great straits, and held only a few of the Mexican towns. In these the series is said to have been employed, but it is doubtful whether the two higher values were ever in use. We have ourselves only seen a single 2 reales blue postmarked. The specimen we saw was perforated. Unperforated impressions are still to be had, but at a high price.

NOTE.—These stamps offer great interest to the students of varieties, as they are found printed on several kinds of paper. Nearly 40 varieties in all may be distinguished. NOTE.—The illustration on the preceding page only shows the ornamental part of the design.

The registration system of New Granada is similar to that of Franco, a distinction being made between letters registered with and those registered without a declaration of value. Nos. 23, 26, and 27 are used for the former class, and Nos. 24 and 25 for the latter. The capital A in No. 23 signifies anotados, or noted (the additional form), and the R in No. 24 registered. These two stamps are of the same monetary value, but it will be observed that the vignettes, Nos. 26 and 27, for letters registered with declaration (certificacion con contenido), are charged 50 centavos; whilst No. 25 (sin contenido) is only 25 c. These vignettes are $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. by $5\frac{1}{8}$ in. They are adhesive, and are laid over the back of the envelope, thus forming an additional seal.

NOTE.--These stamps are said to have been issued by the postmasters of the respective offices named, before the emission of the first series for the entire republic, and on their own responsibility. They appear to have been issued, in fact, as a preliminary trial of the postage-stamp system, very shortly after the passing of the Act of 1845, whereby uniform rates of postage were established. The genuineness of the Saint Louis stamps, which are of exceeding rarity, has lately been impugned, but without any reasonable cause.

NOTE.—The obsolete stamps of New South Wales have long formed an interesting object of study to stamp collectors. The first issue contains a representation which I, adopting the general opinion, have termed a view of Sydney, but which some consider to be entirely allegorical. The design both of this and of the laureated series was not carefully engraved, and instead of one original matrix being made, several copies of the design were drawn, all differing from each other; neither were all the impressions taken from one original plate, as are those of most stamps. There are, consequently, many more or less marked varieties. The varieties here enumerated are the most marked; but many persons place all stamps showing the slightest differences in detail—such as in the point of commencement of the motto, the position of the houses, the size of the letters, the shades of colour, &c.—in their albums. The variations in the laureated series are the position of the profile, the shape of the profile itself, and of the ornaments in the upper margin, the size of the lettering, &c. These distinctions, though interesting in themselves, if made in the catalogue, might tend rather to confuse and dishearten most collectors; as few could hope to obtain all the varieties, except at an expense of time and money which their acquisition would hardly justify. Those who require a complete guide to the types and varieties are referred to the papers, by Mr. Pemberton, which have appeared in The Stamp-Collector's Magazine; they are the result of years of study on the author's part, and are thoroughly trustworthy.

APPENDIX.

LOCAL STAMPS.

INTRODUCTION.

Local stamps are stamps issued by private persons or companies, with or without the authority of the state, for the purpose of prepaying the proprietors' charges for the carriage of letters from one particular town to another, or from one part of a town to another; the Russian local stamps, however, have an exceptional origin, they being issued by the local postal authorities of the government in which they are current. Of the local emissions with which collectors are acquainted, and for which spaces are allotted in all the principal albums, scarcely one half are genuine, the remainder being the fraudulent fabrications of dishonest engravers and speculators.

The following catalogue (excepting that portion devoted to the United States) includes only stamps whose claims to authenticity are generally admitted, the collection of which may be justifiably recommended. The United States local stamps are the subjects of a special arrangement, which is explained in the sub-preface which precedes them. Lastly, for the guidance of collectors a list of the names of spurious local stamps for other countries than the United States is added at the end of this appendix.

From the present edition I have entirely omitted the stamps issued by British railway companies, for the prepayment of newspapers, single or in packets, from station to station; and also the stamps issued by Circular Delivery Companies, for the purpose, as the name implies, of covering the charge made by the companies for the delivery of circulars, believing that neither the one nor the other are in any respect entitled to be considered as postage stamps. The Circular Delivery stamps were but mere advertising labels affixed by the company to circulars, the charge for delivery of which had been paid in money by the sender.

NOTE.—All the above stamps are considered to be genuine. Of the actual existence of two of the local post-offices, those of Drontheim and Bergen, I have myself had proof; the Drammens stamps alone have a rather suspicious appearance, from the values being printed in several colours. It is said that in Norway, as in America, letters are not delivered by the post-office; and that private offices are now springing up in the principal towns, for the purpose of completing the postal service.

EGYPT.

SUEZ MARITIME CANAL COMPANY.

NOTE.—A set of four stamps, printed in colours and value 1 c., 5 c., 20 c., and 40 c., is said to have been emitted by the Company, but I believe them to be spurious. It is stated that they were withdrawn immediately after their emission; but it is very improbable, had the Company really established a system of postal communication for the benefit of its employes, that it would have given up the experiment after a three weeks' trial. The fact that the values also are in the French currency gives additional ground for suspicion.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

THE local stamps of the United States may be divided into two classes : 1. Those used in California and Oregon. 2. Those used in the other states of the union. The former, with the exception of the set of Pony Express stamps, the Humboldt Express label, and Adam's 25 c. stamp, consist entirely of hand stamps on ordinary envelopes, or imprints on envelopes bearing the United States embossed postage stamps. Those on plain envelopes are but few in number, and were used before the government issued stamped envelopes; but there are a large number of imprints, most of which consist simply of the name of the issuing firm or company, enclosed in an oblong label, or scroll; some few, however, in addition to this, comprise a representation of a mail-coach, or a miner. All the stamps or imprints of this class are genuine; the companies by whom they are issued undertake the carriage of letters to places which are not served, or are inefficiently served, by the government post-office. The law forbidding the transport of letters by private persons renders it necessary that the United States rate of postage should be paid on the letters forwarded by these companies, and this rate is represented by the embossed U. S. postage stamp; the senders of letters have therefore to pay the U. S. rate and the company's charge in addition; and the compound postage is collected by the sale of the U. S. envelopes bearing the company's frank. As genuine stamps, then, these emissions, constituting the first class, are worthy of collection; but the great similarity of design existing between nearly all these emissions, renders it unnecessary to give more than their names, and the number of known varieties of each, except in the few instances where the type is peculiar.

The second class comprises all those labels which were issued by private persons or firms, for one or other of the following purposes: 1. For prepayment of postage from one town to another. 2. For payment of charge on letters deposited in a box, and taken by its proprietor to the post-office. 3. To cover the collection of letters at the post-office, and their delivery at the receiver's house, the U. S. postal rates not including such delivery. These stamps number between two and three hundred. At the present time, originals are rarely to be had; nearly all the labels, however, have either been reprinted (and that in divers colours too) or counterfeited, or both; and many pretended local stamps have been concocted by unscrupulous American dealers. The collection of these stamps being rendered at once difficult, unsatisfactory, and uninteresting, by reason of the doubts which, under such circumstances, most collectors must feel as to the value of specimens offered to them, I am disposed to recommend the abandonment of any attempt to obtain them; and as a mere list of the names of these stamps can be but of very slight service to collectors, I have suppressed the catalogue which has appeared in previous editions. In its place is inserted a list of those stamps of the second class which have been ascertained to be false; philatelists, therefore, if they find any given stamp is not included in this list, will have negative evidence that such stamp, or a similar one, once existed; though even to this extent there can be nothing approaching to certainty, as the number of doubtful stamps is as large as that of the decidedly false.

Medio real, green; dos rls., rose.

NOTE.—The government of Venezuela gave the contract for the conveyance of the mails between La Guaira (the seaport of the Venezuelan capital, Caraccas), Porto Cabello, and the West Indian island, St. Thomas, to Captain Robert Tod. This gentleman transferred his rights to a resident at Curacao, who caused a ship to be built in England for the purpose of carrying the letters, and called it the Robert Tod. The stamps No. 1 were also made in this country by Waterlow & Sons, and serve to prepay the postage from La Guaira to St. Thomas. The stamps No. 2 were probably manufactured on the island last-named, and are intended to frank letters and newspapers from thence to the Venezuelan ports. Both series having been emitted by the special authority of the state, they may justly be considered to be government issues. In the island of St. Thomas they are known as the "Robert Tod" stamps. The third series is probably of equal value with its predecessors, but no details as to its history have yet been received.

NEW SOUTH WALES. (p. 159).

SYDNEY.

NOTE.—I take the opportunity to insert here, for the guidance of collectors, an engraving of the very rare envelope stamp issued in 1849, but not discovered until 1869. Its extreme rarity—there are but about half-a-dozen copies in existence—will render it to all intents and purposes unattainable by the great body of philatelists.
